Foreword

Pursuant to The Japan-ASEAN Plan of Action attached to The Tokyo Declaration for the Dynamic and Enduring Japan-ASEAN Partnership in the New Millennium, a team of security experts convened two workshops and a symposium in Tokyo and Singapore in August and October to study possible measures for enhancing security co-operation between Japan and ASEAN countries in the face of new political realities and security challenges in the 21st century, and agreed on a set of policy recommendations.

On behalf of the team of security experts from Japan and ASEAN countries, we have the honour to submit to the leaders at the Japan-ASEAN Summit Meeting scheduled on November 30, 2004 in Vientiane, the Lao People's Democratic Republic, the report JAPAN-ASEAN SECURITY CO-OPERATION: Recommendations from a Team of Experts, which was finalized at the 2nd Japan-ASEAN Security Symposium 2004 on Japan-ASEAN Security Co-operation in Singapore on October 27–28.

The Institute of Defence and Strategic Studies and The Japan Institute of International Affairs convey our highest regards.

JAPAN-ASEAN SECURITY CO-OPERATION Recommendations from a Team of Experts

28th October 2004

Introduction

1. Pursuant to Section C., “Strengthening Political and Security Co-operation and Partnership,” of The Japan-ASEAN Plan of Action attached to The Tokyo Declaration for the Dynamic and Enduring Japan-ASEAN Partnership in the New Millennium, a team of security experts, who assembled once in Tokyo in August and twice in Singapore in October 2004, studied possible measures to enhance security co-operation and partnership between Japan and ASEAN countries to address new political realities and security challenges they face in the 21st century.
2. The team of experts, who participated in their personal capacity, identified six critical security challenges that Japan and ASEAN should jointly address: (a) threats to maritime safety and security (including piracy and armed robbery at sea); (b) international terrorism; (c) transnational crime; (d) military modernisation and production, procurement, use, proliferation, reduction and elimination of weapons of mass destruction (WMD); (e) peace-keeping, peace-making and post-conflict reconstruction; and (f) environmental and natural disasters. The team also recommended certain institutional arrangements for the enhancement of security co-operation and partnership between Japan and ASEAN countries.
3. The team of experts agreed on 27th and 28th October 2004 in Singapore on the policy recommendations to be submitted through the Japan-ASEAN SOM to the leaders of Japan and ASEAN countries when they meet in November 2004 in Vientiane. They hope that those policy recommendations would help their senior officials to put into practice policies that the leaders of Japan and ASEAN countries agreed in Tokyo in December 2003.
4. The team of experts proposes that Japan-ASEAN security co-operation be guided by respect for the principles embodied in the Charter of the United Nations (UN), the Treaty of Amity and Co-operation in Southeast Asia (TAC), and other internationally recognised principles.

Recommendations

1. Maritime Safety and Security

- (1) Promote co-operation among Japan and ASEAN countries' coast guards, navies and/or other competent authorities by, for instance, strengthening communications channels for swift information sharing. Existing experts meetings and joint exercises, which have been held among the competent authorities of Japan and ASEAN countries, need to be intensified further.
- (2) Form a list of operational contact points of Japan and ASEAN countries among the competent authorities that will facilitate information exchange and the conduct of joint exercises. Co-operation among coast guard agencies is critical for effective law enforcement at sea without violating jurisdiction of the other states.
- (3) Co-operate in upgrading the security of ports and the strengthening of institutions for good governance at sea among Japan and ASEAN countries.
- (4) Swiftly conclude and implement the Regional Co-operation Agreement on Combating Piracy and Armed Robbery against Ships now under negotiation.
- (5) Enhance co-operation between Japan and ASEAN countries by increasing technical assistance, including assistance to establish coast guard agencies in some ASEAN countries. The technical assistance could also include training exercises to raise capacity to protect the safety of their shipping transportation, to prevent and suppress unlawful acts at sea and to keep safety and order in national waters. Particular attention should be paid to the areas of interdiction and boarding techniques, together with how to conduct law-enforcing measures without violating international law through legal training for law enforcement officials.
- (6) Enhance Japan's contribution to strengthening coast guard agencies of ASEAN countries, including by granting vessels with necessary weaponry. Given the critical role ASEAN coast guard agencies play in maritime safety and security in the region, Japan should therefore reconsider its basic principles governing exports of weapons and the ODA provisions for ASEAN countries.
- (7) Expand bilateral and regional maritime security co-operation, such as search and rescue, mine sweeping, submarine rescue and other security measures to strengthen good governance at sea.

2. International Terrorism

- (1) Reiterate that there can be no justification for acts of terrorism and welcome the close co-operation in countering terrorism between Japan and the ASEAN countries.
- (2) Expand co-operation by addressing some root causes of international terrorism beyond the ongoing technical assistance and co-operation and enhance protective measures to pre-empt terrorists. Japan and ASEAN countries should ensure that all those causes identified in international fora are given due consideration, including poverty, political oppression, the policies of major powers in Iraq and the Israel-Palestine issue.
- (3) Develop the legal infrastructure for co-operation to combat terrorism, such as criminalisation of terrorism and extradition of those involved on a reciprocal basis. Japan and ASEAN countries should enhance information and intelligence sharing for effective law enforcement and to disrupt terrorist operations such as raising and moving funds for their operations.
- (4) Conduct bilateral and/or regional joint training and seminars between relevant Japanese agencies and agencies in any of the ASEAN countries including the Southeast Asia Regional Centre for Counter-terrorism (SEARCCT) in Malaysia, the Indonesia Centre for Law Enforcement Co-operation (ICLEC) in Indonesia and the International Centre for Political Violence and Terrorism Research (ICPVTR) in Singapore.
- (5) Promote closer co-operation between relevant Japanese and ASEAN authorities facilitating the pooling of resources and inter-agency collaboration and co-operation in new equipment and technology areas such as advanced passenger information (API), machine readable passport/visa (MRPV) and biometric technology.

3. Transnational Crime

- (1) Promote co-operation between Japan and ASEAN countries in combating transnational crime, especially smuggling and trafficking of natural persons, narcotics, explosives, small arms, light weapons and WMD materials.
- (2) Co-operate to step up efficacy in meeting security threats from transnational crime by enhancing capacity building of officials, sharing information and intelligence, strengthening legal infrastructure, developing legislation to suppress transnational crime and intensifying co-ordination among relevant agencies.
- (3) Explore the possibility of utilising advanced technology, such as information satellites and modern surveillance aircraft to enhance detection and surveillance capabilities. Japan should consider providing assistance to those ASEAN countries which need such services and equipment.

4. Military Modernisation and Weapons of Mass Destruction

- (1) Strengthen and promote dialogue on military modernisation and acquisition to more effectively address common security threats. Such exchanges of information could include the preparation of defence white papers and information exchanges.
- (2) Co-operate in promoting the reduction and elimination of weapons of mass destruction.
- (3) Establish an effective export control system for weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery as a high priority in Japan and ASEAN countries and ensure its effective implementation. This should include effective internal export control mechanisms within the private sector.
- (4) Establish national centre(s) for security trade controls in ASEAN country(s) that so wish and set up a network of collaboration among those centres.

5. Peace Making, Peace Keeping, Peace Building and Post Conflict Reconstruction

- (1) Promote co-operation and strengthen the capacity of countries for peace making, peace keeping, peace building and post conflict reconstruction.
- (2) Assist in establishing PKO centre(s) in country(s) that so wish, and set up a network of collaboration among national PKO centres and relevant institutions for the purpose of (i) sharing experiences and doctrines about peace keeping, (ii) strengthening capacity building for personnel, and (iii) upgrading interoperability, through joint training and provision of facilities.
- (3) Enhance co-operation between Japan and ASEAN in peace making by developing mediation roles.
- (4) Jointly study and develop post-conflict reconstruction measures.

6. Environmental and Natural Disasters

- (1) Promote co-operation and strengthen networks for information exchanges and increase public awareness of the need to prevent and to respond effectively to environmental disasters, such as deforestation, haze, acid rain and marine pollution.
- (2) Co-operate in taking swift action to meet natural calamities, such as earthquakes, typhoons and flash flooding.
- (3) Set up an agreed process for dispatching and receiving emergency rescue and disaster relief units, including co-operation in joint rescue training/exercises.

7. Institutional Arrangements for Japan-ASEAN Security Co-operation

- (1) Establish the Japan-ASEAN Security Forum at track II level, that would constitute a platform for Japan and ASEAN countries (i) to exchange information and evaluation on security threats in the region, (ii) to review the implementation of co-operative measures already agreed, and (iii) to propose new areas of co-operation between Japan and ASEAN. The Japan-ASEAN Security Forum would be composed of representatives of the same government and research institutions that have participated in this symposium. The Forum would provide inputs to the Japan-ASEAN Forum, which meets at the Senior Officials level.

- (2) Expand the Japan-ASEAN Forum to include the relevant ministries or agencies, such as foreign affairs, defence, marine and land police, immigration, customs, financial transactions, trade, and health.

- (3) Establish an ARF Forum of Defence Ministers for the purpose of strengthening further Japan-ASEAN security cooperation amongst others.

Objectives

1. History and Synopsis

The 1st Japan-ASEAN Security Symposium, co-organized by the Japan Institute of International Affairs (JIIA) and the Institute of Defence and Strategic Studies (IDSS), Singapore, and hosted by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Japan, was held in October 2003 as one event commemorating 2003 as the Year of Japan-ASEAN Exchange. Government officials and experts on security issues from Japan and the countries of ASEAN participated in their individual capacities in this Symposium. The significant policy changes made by the US and China with regard to the Asia-Pacific region will have a major impact on Japan and ASEAN as well as on Japan-ASEAN relations. Accordingly, participants discussed six possible areas of cooperation between Japan and ASEAN in the realm of security: (1) counter-terrorism measures, (2) export controls and transnational crime, (3) military modernization and weapons of mass destruction (WMD), (4) maritime security, (5) PKOs (including joint training and exercises), and (6) regional security frameworks (ARF, ASEAN+3). Recommendations for expanding Japan-ASEAN cooperation on security matters (creation of a Track II network of intellectuals to examine security issues at Senior Officials Meetings (SOM) and assist in the discussions there, and organization of a team of experts in 2004) were compiled in the form of a co-chairmen's report (see appended documents) and submitted as policy recommendations to the Japan-ASEAN Special Summit Meeting held in Tokyo in December.

These recommendations were incorporated in the Japan-ASEAN Plan of Action announced at the Japan-ASEAN Special Summit Meeting, which called for (1) examining the recommendations of the Japan-ASEAN Security Symposium, (2) establishing a Track II network to assist in SOM discussions on security issues, and (3) convening a team of experts in 2004 to study security issues more closely and to recommend suitable measures.

In line with the Japan-ASEAN Plan of Action, the following Track II meetings were held as follow-ups to these earlier discussions in this year, with government officials and private-sector representatives participating in their individual capacities:

- (1) Workshops were held for a team of experts from Japan and the 10 member countries of ASEAN (two workshops held: one in Tokyo and one in Singapore).
- (2) The results of the above two workshops were compiled as recommendations at the 2nd Japan-ASEAN Security Symposium (held in Singapore).
- (3) The policy recommendations will be submitted to the Japan-ASEAN Summit Meeting to be held in November 2004.

In aiming to research and propose measures to be taken by Japan and ASEAN and to assist discussions in Senior Officials' Meetings (SOM), this project produced more effective recommendations for dealing with security issues between Japan and ASEAN through multifaceted analyses of issues involving free, frank and objective Track II discussions among experts, intellectuals, and government officials from Japan and ASEAN unconstrained by the policies of their respective governments.

4. Participants in Workshops/a Symposium

The two workshops and a symposium featured the participation of government officials, private sector representatives, and intellectuals from research institutions/universities from Japan and the 10 member countries of ASEAN. The host countries Japan and Singapore sent three to five persons each, while each of the ASEAN countries sent two participants: one government official and one person from a research institute or university. The Japanese participants were selected by the Japan Institute of International Affairs and those from ASEAN by the Institute of Defence and Strategic Studies, Singapore; the two institutes coordinated these selections.

The scheduled participants for the Japanese side (titles omitted) were as follows: Yukio Satoh (President, the Japan Institute of International Affairs [JIIA]), Makio Miyagawa (Director, JIIA), Tsutomu Kikuchi (Professor, Aoyama Gakuin University), Takio Yamada (Director, Regional Policy Division, Asian and Oceanian Affairs Bureau, Ministry of Foreign Affairs [MOFA]), representatives from the Maritime Safety Agency, and representatives from the Defense Agency. In charge of organizing the event on the Japanese side were Masashi Yamano (Major, JASDF, and Deputy Director, Asian and Oceanian Affairs Bureau, MOFA), Haruka Matsumoto (Research Fellow, JIIA), and Yuji Ikegami (Secretariat, JIIA). In charge on the Singaporean side were Kwa Chong Guan (Head of External Programmes, Institute of Defence and Strategic Studies [IDSS]) and Hiro Katsumata (Post-Doctoral Fellow, IDSS).

5. Project Costs

- (1) First Workshop: The costs of the Workshop, organized by JIIA, were borne by the Japanese side in cooperation with the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
- (2) Second Workshop: Singapore, with assistance from the Japan-ASEAN General Exchange Fund, was responsible for covering the costs of this Workshop, organized by IDSS.
- (3) Second Symposium: The Japanese side in cooperation with the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs was responsible for the costs and the planning of the Symposium, organized by IDSS.

The expenses, which included travel and accommodations, for the Japanese private sector participants and for the total of 20 private sector participants from ASEAN (one government official and another from a research institute or university for each country) were covered by the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs for the 1st workshop and the 2nd symposium, and by the Japan-ASEAN General Exchange Fund for the 2nd workshop.

THE JAPAN-ASEAN PLAN OF ACTION

The Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) has been making efforts to enhance its economic competitiveness by sustaining economic growth and strengthening regional integration while at the same time expanding and deepening economic interdependence outside the region. Economic interdependence between Japan and ASEAN has been steadily increasing, making ASEAN Japan's second largest trade partner. Private direct investment from Japan to ASEAN Member Countries over the past ten years has reached a substantial level further demonstrating the close economic linkages between Japan and ASEAN Member Countries. Japan has assisted the economic and social development of ASEAN Member Countries by providing bilateral Official Development Assistance (ODA), thereby contributing to the peace, stability and prosperity in the region. Japan also attaches special importance to ASEAN Member Countries and has deeply committed itself to forging stronger relations with the ASEAN region through its ODA and by promoting trade and investment, building on the achievements made so far.

In this respect, Japan will place emphasis on the following areas in cooperation with ASEAN:

- a. Cooperation for reinforcing integration of ASEAN
(Narrowing the gaps through, inter alia, the Initiative for ASEAN Integration (IAI), the Mekong region development, Brunei-Indonesia-Malaysia-Philippines East ASEAN Growth Area (BIMP-EAGA), and Economic Cooperation Strategy among Cambodia, Lao PDR, Myanmar and Thailand, as well as improving economic infrastructure);
- b. Cooperation for enhancing economic competitiveness of ASEAN Member Countries including investment promotion

(Forging economic partnerships as well as promoting education, human resource development and institutional capacity building); and

- c. Cooperation for addressing terrorism, piracy and other transnational issues
(Enhancing cooperation in the areas, including human and institutional capacity building for law enforcement agencies).

Human resource development is a prerequisite for making progress in any of those 3 areas. In consultation and coordination with ASEAN Member Countries, Japan will enhance support for human resource development through technical cooperation by the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), the Association for Overseas Technical Scholarship (AOTS), the Japan Overseas

Development Corporation (JODC) etc., grant aid and yen loans by the Japan Bank for International Cooperation (JBIC) as well as scholarship programmes, especially in the following 7 major issues under "Japan-ASEAN Total Plan for Human Resource Development": policy making and public administration; industry and energy; education; global issues (environment, infectious diseases); community empowerment; minimising regional disparity (south-south cooperation); and information and communication technology (ICT).

In response to actual needs, Japan's cooperation covering those issues in human resource development and relevant areas over the next three years for ASEAN Member Countries is expected to exceed US$ 1.5 billion, with various human exchange programmes involving approximately 40,000 people.

Given the above background and pursuant to the signing of the Tokyo Declaration for the Dynamic and Enduring Japan-ASEAN Partnership in the New Millennium in Tokyo on the occasion of the Japan-ASEAN Commemorative Summit on 11–12 December 2003, the Heads of State/Government of ASEAN and Japan have adopted the following joint actions and measures:

- c. Make maximum efforts to commence the negotiation on the CEP Agreement between Japan and ASEAN as a whole from the beginning of 2005, taking into account the achievements of bilateral negotiations between Japan and each ASEAN Member country and the further progress of the ASEAN integration process. Japan and ASEAN will endeavour to conclude the negotiation as soon as possible, taking into account the need to leave sufficient time for implementation;
- d. Implement measures for the realisation of the Japan-ASEAN CEP, including elements of a possible free trade area, as soon as possible by 2012, taking into account the economic levels and sensitive sectors in each country, including allowing additional five years' time for the newer ASEAN Member Countries;

To this end, Japan will provide concrete support through various assistances, both directly and through relevant organisations such as the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and the ASEAN Secretariat to ASEAN Member Countries as needed;
- e. Japan will facilitate the development of regional bond markets by utilising the various functions of relevant Japanese entities such as JBIC as well as the Nippon Export and Investment Insurance
